

1. How are clusters created? Do they spring up naturally or are they cultivated? Does the public sector create them?
2. How can the public sector and post secondary education identify the specific work force needs of cluster companies and meet them?
3. What else do post secondary education and workforce development agencies need to know to assist cluster companies?
4. How do post secondary education and workforce development agencies combine to work with clusters?
5. What kinds of intermediaries are needed to link post secondary education and workforce development agencies with clusters?
6. What innovations did you observe in providing services and information to companies on the part of PSE and WFD?
7. Describe three significant steps that workforce development agencies can take to meet needs of clusters.